

FULBRIGHT NEW ZEALAND SCHOLAR AWARDS

New Zealand academics, artists or professionals are invited to apply for the Fulbright New Zealand Scholar Awards to research and/or lecture at US institutions for three to five months. Grantees are selected on the basis of academic, artistic, or professional excellence, leadership potential and ambassadorial qualities.

Fulbright New Zealand Scholar Awards are valued at up to US$37,500, towards three to five months of lecturing and/or research. There are also dependent and travel stipends available.

ABOUT FULBRIGHT NEW ZEALAND

Fulbright New Zealand was established by bilateral treaty in 1948 to administer the Fulbright exchange programme in New Zealand. Since then, over 3,000 grantees from both New Zealand and the United States have benefited from the exchange.

To be eligible, you must:

- have a PhD or the equivalent professional or artistic training or experience;
- show professional distinction, leadership skills, and strong ambassadorial qualities;
- plan to undertake full-time research and/or lecturing at a US institution for three to five months; and
- be a New Zealand citizen and not a permanent resident or citizen of the United States

Professor at University of Waikato, Associate Dean Postgraduate/Te Ara Tōtara

“One of the great things was the diversity in cultural values. I engaged deeply with groups and individuals whose values were different but there was a sense of mutuality as humans. While politics has driven people apart, there were still shared human values which bound people together.”

Steven Ratuva

2017 Fulbright New Zealand Scholar Award

Steven is Director of the Macmillan Brown Centre for Pacific Studies and Professor at the University of Canterbury.
