OUR MISSION

CHAIRPERSON'S REPORT

Kia ora koutou

I am delighted to present the 2023 Fulbright New Zealand Annual Report.

Fulbright has a long and illustrious history in New Zealand and I was honoured to become its Chair part-way through 2023. I have always admired this organisation for its inspiring and important mission and the year following its 75th anniversary here has been extremely busy. In my first few months as Chair I have been impressed not only by the academic talent and vision of our grantees, but also the strong contributions they have made to New Zealand life.

I want to acknowledge the work of my predecessor, Wendy Larner, who skilfully guided our organisation – with the support of an excellent Board – through a period of unprecedented disruption caused by the COVID-19 pandemic. We congratulate Wendy on her appointment to the role of President and Vice-Chancellor of Cardiff University and wish her well in Wales.

I want to also thank and farewell two Board members who have departed during this period: Fulbright NZ Scholar Alumna, Anne Noble, who served as a New Zealand Board member for three years; and US Board member, Leslie Goodman, who completed her term as Senior Public Diplomacy Officer at the US Embassy in Wellington.

We also warmly welcomed new members to the Board; US Board member Christina Riesselman, who is a Senior Lecturer at the University of Otago's Department of Geology and Marine Science, and holds a PhD from Stanford University; and, New Zealand Board Member Jennifer Curtin, who is a Fulbright NZ Scholar Alumna, Professor of Politics and Public Policy, and the inaugural Director of the Public Policy Institute at the University of Auckland Waipapa Taumata Rau.

I also want to congratulate Penelope Borland and her team who have ensured that Fulbright NZ has not only survived but also thrived through a difficult and unsettled period. I am pleased to report that during this year we have finally begun to emerge from the disruption of Covid, and it was very exciting to celebrate a larger-than-ever cohort of award recipients. In total, 53 grantees took up their awards in 2023 - some of our US grantees had had to wait a very long time to come to Aotearoa.

All that we do would not be possible without the steadfast support of the US Department of State's Bureau of Education and Cultural Affairs, and New Zealand's Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade, and of course our various partners. We are extremely grateful.

Ngā mihi nui, Alastair Bisley

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S REPORT

Kia ora koutou

2023 has been a big year for us, as we celebrated 75 years of Fulbright in New Zealand and saw things finally begin to return to normal following the border closure and other challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic.

The year started with an exciting change for our team, as we moved into our beautiful new offices at 26 The Terrace in Wellington. It was a time of much upheaval (and a lot of de-cluttering) but it has been wonderful to finally be able to enjoy working in our modern and light, fit-for-purpose space.

This year has marked a full return to our in-person events, with a successful orientation for US grantees in February (despite the best efforts of Cyclone Gabrielle) and outreach events throughout Aotearoa in May and June. But the undoubted highlight was our mid-year Awards Ceremony on 27 June, when we were able to welcome and celebrate our largest ever cohort of 53 grantees.

This event, which doubled as a 75th Anniversary celebration, was hosted by the then Deputy Speaker of the House, Greg O'Connor, and officiated by then Deputy Prime Minister, Hon Carmel Sepuloni, with US Ambassador Tom Udall congratulating grantees. It was a night to remember – and a wonderful way to celebrate our grantees and mark 75 years of educational and cultural exchange between the US and New Zealand.

We have also been able to resume programmes that were suspended during the pandemic, including the Fulbright-Creative New Zealand Pacific Writer's Residency and the Ian Axford Fellowships in Public Policy, which Fulbright NZ administers on behalf of the Ian Axford Fellowships Board.

The resumption of international travel meant that I was also able to finally reconnect in person with my colleagues from around the world. I travelled to Indonesia in March for the East Asia/Pacific Executive Directors' Meeting and to Washington DC at the end of May, for the first world meeting of Fulbright Executive Directors in four years. Just as person-toperson exchange is key to the Fulbright programme for grantees, it is fundamental for the Fulbright team world-wide. It is opportunities like these which enable us to exchange ideas in person, learn from each other, and ensure that the Fulbright programme continually evolves and adapts to be the best that it can be.

Throughout this period, we have seen some changes within the Fulbright NZ team. We thanked and farewelled Executive Assistant Leah Dodd. We welcomed Dawn Ferguson who covered the Executive Assistant role on a temporary basis from February to May, Paul Altomari, who joined us in March 2023 as a Programme Manager, and Molly Nunns, who supported us as a contractor in the role of Senior Communications Advisor.

In closing I want to thank all our supporters, partners, alumni, grantees, and friends for their unwavering support through what has been a uniquely challenging period. Our resilience in the face of adversity, and the re-establishment of key programmes, means we can now look ahead to the future with confidence.

Hei konā mai, Penelope Borland

THE FULBRIGHT PROGRAMME

HISTORY OF THE PROGRAMME

The Fulbright programme of international educational exchange was an initiative of American Senator J. William Fulbright from Arkansas, who in the aftermath of World War II believed that greater mutual understanding between different countries and cultures was crucial to ensure a peaceful future for the world.

The Fulbright Act, an ingenious piece of legislation passed by the United States Congress in 1946, directed proceeds from the sale of surplus war property, foreign loan repayments and reparations to fund the "promotion of international good will through the exchange of students in the fields of education, culture, and science."

In Senator Fulbright's own words, the Fulbright programme aims "to bring a little more knowledge, a little more reason and a little more compassion into world affairs and thereby to increase the chance that nations will learn at last to live in peace and friendship."

The Fulbright programme has been described as one of the largest and most significant movements of scholars across the face of the earth. It now operates in over 160 countries, funding around 8,000 exchanges per year for participants to study, research and teach in another country.

The more than 400,000 Fulbright alumni worldwide include heads of state, cabinet ministers, ambassadors, politicians, judges, heads of corporations, university presidents, journalists, artists, professors and teachers. Fulbright alumni include 54 Nobel Prize winners and 82 Pulitzer Prize winners.

International educational exchange is the most significant current project designed to continue the process of humanizing mankind to the point, we would hope, that men can learn to live in peace...We must try to expand the boundaries of human wisdom, empathy and perception, there is no way of doing that except through education."

- SENATOR J. WILLIAM FULBRIGHT

OUR GOALS

FROM THE LAND OF THE LONG WHITE CLOUD TO TURTLE ISLAND

Earlier this year, an awesome group of Fulbrighters from Aotearoa collaborated to present at the NAISA conference in Toronto, Canada. The Native American and Indigenous Studies Association (NAISA) is an interdisciplinary, international membership-based organisation comprised of scholars working in all aspects of Native American and Indigenous Studies.

Zoë Henry (Ngāpuhi, Ngāti Kahu, Makefu - Niue), Alehandrea Raiha Manuel (Ngāti Porou), Ngarangi Haerewa (Te-Whanauā-Apanui), Liam Wooding (Ngāti Hinearo, Ngāti Tuera/Te Ati Haunui-a-Pāpārangi), Nicole Edwards (Ngā Tahu, Ngāti Kahungunu) and Nikki Barrett (Ngāti Hauā, Ngāti Porou), worked as a panel to present 'From the Land of the Long White Cloud to Turtle Island: Navigating Indigeneity as Fulbright Scholars'. Their kōrero aimed to explore and reflect on their unique positionings as Indigenous visitors/relations/cousins on Turtle Island as well as critically examine the intersection between Indigenous and Fulbright award recipients. Through this conversation, the group hoped to "share the unspoken, the felt but not seen of [their] experiences so far on Turtle Island and to extend the possibility of building an Indigenous Fulbright network in the future."

We asked them to share their personal highlights from this experience:

Zoë: Being surrounded by Indigenous voices and knowledges at NAISA was absolutely stunning and something I had really missed being away from home. And hearing all our Māori vowels again!

Alehandrea: Reconnecting with each other in Indigenous spaces, listening to each other's experiences, the laughs with each other, and being in the presence of young, brilliant Indigenous leaders.

Ngarangi: Definitely reconnecting. Not having to explain things twice but also to be inspired by one another. Meeting some of the Rangatira from Waikato and learning our mutual whānau connection.

Liam: Being able to learn about some of the cutting-edge interdisciplinary research in Indigenous spaces right now. As someone who is only just dipping their toes into this space as a researcher, the conference was a real encouragement to keep exploring my research interests into the intersection between Te Ao Māori and classical music in New Zealand.

Nicole: NAISA was an invaluable opportunity to connect with other Indigenous communities and their Kaupapa, and to experience such strong overlaps in values, interests and aspirations amongst diverse communities.

Nikki: This opportunity provided me with a muchneeded connection to other Māori and Indigenous Peoples. It refuelled my wairua!

The Fulbright programme is all about educational and cultural exchange, collaboration, connection and friendship – and this mahi is a great example of those values in action. Well done team for sharing your knowledge and insights on the global stage, and for initiating korero around your own experiences of navigating Indigeneity as Fulbrighters. These are important conversations! Ka rawe koutou katoa!

INDEPENDENT AUDITOR'S REPORT TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NZ UNITED STATES EDUCATION FOUNDATION

Report on the Audit of the Consolidated Financial Statements

Opinion

We have audited the consolidated financial statements of The New Zealand United States Education Foundation and its subsidiaries (together, "the Group"), which comprise the consolidated statement of financial position as at 30 September 2023, and the consolidated statement of comprehensive revenue and expense, consolidated statement of changes in equity and consolidated cash flow statement for the year then ended, and notes to the consolidated financial statements, including a summary of significant accounting policies.

In our opinion, the accompanying consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the consolidated financial position of the Group as at 30 September 2023, and its consolidated financial performance and its consolidated cash flows for the year then ended in accordance with Public Benefit Entity Standards Reduced Disclosure Regime ("PBE Standards RDR") issued by the New Zealand Accounting Standards Board.

Basis for Opinion

We conducted our audit in accordance with International Standards on Auditing (New Zealand) ("ISAs (NZ)"). Our responsibilities under those standards are further described in the Auditor's Responsibilities for the Audit of the Consolidated Financial Statements section of our report. We are independent of the Group in accordance with Professional and Ethical Standard 1 International Code of Ethics for Assurance Practitioners (including International Independence Standards) (New Zealand) issued by the New Zealand Auditing and Assurance Standards Board, and we have fulfilled our other ethical responsibilities in accordance with these requirements. We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our opinion.

Other than in our capacity as auditor we have no relationship with, or interests in, the group or any of its subsidiaries.

Other Matters

The financial statements of the Group for the year ended 30 September 2022 were audited by another auditor who expressed an unmodified opinion on those financial statements on 19 December 2022.

Board of Directors' Responsibilities for the Consolidated Financial Statements

The Board of Directors are responsible on behalf of the Group for the preparation and fair presentation of the consolidated financial statements in accordance with PBE Standards RDR, and for such internal control as the Board of Directors determine is necessary to enable the preparation of consolidated financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibilities for the Audit of the Consolidated Financial Statements

Our objectives are to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the consolidated financial statements as a whole are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error, and to issue an auditor's report that includes our opinion. Reasonable assurance is a high level of assurance, but is not a guarantee that an audit conducted in accordance with ISAs (NZ) will always detect a material misstatement when it exists. Misstatements can arise from fraud or error and are considered material if, individually or in the aggregate, they could reasonably be expected to influence the decisions of users taken on the basis of these consolidated financial statements.

A further description of our responsibilities for the audit of the financial statements is located at the External Reporting Board's website at: https://www.xrb.govt.nz/assurance-standards/auditors-responsibilities/audit-report-7/.

FY2023 SUMMARY

.The New Zealand United States Educational Foundation reported a net deficit for the year of $128,475 for the 12 months ending 30 September 2023, compared to a surplus of $539,297 for the previous year.

This result reflected that all programmes were able to be fully resumed, following those suspended during the pandemic. Grant expenditure was therefore higher than 2022 as we welcomed a triple cohort of US grantees from the US in February, together with the departure of our NZ grantees to the US in July. In-person events including our annual awards ceremony, orientation sessions and outreach events were also celebrated.

We look forward to 2024 being our first complete year of having shifted back to business as usual.
